

Hello,

My name is Stacey and I'm the Chief Executive of The Robert Jones and Agnes Hunt Orthopaedic Hospital, more commonly known as RJAH. That's a fancy way of saying I'm the boss in the hospital. I work with lots of people you know – it could be your mums or dads or perhaps your aunts, uncles, cousins or grandparents.

I'm writing especially to you, because I want to say thank you. Thank you for letting us 'borrow' the people closest to you to work in our hospital – they are doing an amazing job. If your grown-ups are now at home more often, thank you for being so patient with them as they hog the wi-fi, ask you to be quiet while they have lots of meetings, and try to help you with school work.

You are coping with a lot right now. You aren't at school, all your fun activities have been cancelled, and you aren't seeing your friends or family. This must be really hard on special days like birthdays. It's ok to be sad, or angry, or even scared. It's important to remember that this won't last forever and we will all get to spend time together with the people we love soon.

Until then, take care of yourselves and remember to wash your hands!

All the best,

Stacey
